Problem Statement

TASK 1: Investor Readiness and Storytelling in Business (4 Marks)

Scenario:

Usman has built a small HealthTech app that reminds patients in rural Pakistan to take their daily medicine on time. The app has 1,200 active users and has received positive feedback. A friend tells him about a startup competition where the winner gets PKR 10 lakh in seed funding. Usman wants to apply but does not know how to present his startup to investors or how to tell his business story in a way that connects emotionally.

Questions:

1. What does it mean for a startup to be investor-ready? Mention THREE things Usman must prepare before presenting to investors and briefly explain each. (2 Marks)
2. What is storytelling in business? Write a short business story (3 to 5 sentences) for Usman's app that could be used in his investor pitch. (2 Marks)

TASK 2: Startup Sectors and Social Enterprises (3 Marks)

Scenario:

Nadia is a fresh graduate from Lahore. She wants to start a business but is confused between two ideas. Idea A: An AgriTech mobile app that helps small farmers in Punjab get real-time prices for their crops so they are not cheated by middlemen. Idea B: A social enterprise that collects unused food from restaurants in Lahore every night and distributes it to homeless shelters. Both ideas excite her but she does not fully understand what category each belongs to or how they differ in purpose.

Questions:

1. What is an AgriTech startup? Why is Nadia's Idea A a strong AgriTech opportunity in Pakistan? Give TWO reasons. (2 Marks)
2. What is a Social Enterprise? How is Nadia's Idea B different from a regular for-profit business? (1 Mark)

TASK 3: Remote Teams and the Lifelong Learning Mindset (3 Marks)

Scenario:

Farhan runs a small digital marketing agency in Karachi. He has three clients but cannot find skilled people locally at a price he can afford. A colleague suggests he hire remote freelancers from other cities in Pakistan a content writer from Multan, a graphic designer from Peshawar, and an SEO expert from Islamabad. Farhan is also someone who stopped learning new skills after completing his degree three years ago and now feels left behind in his industry.

Questions:

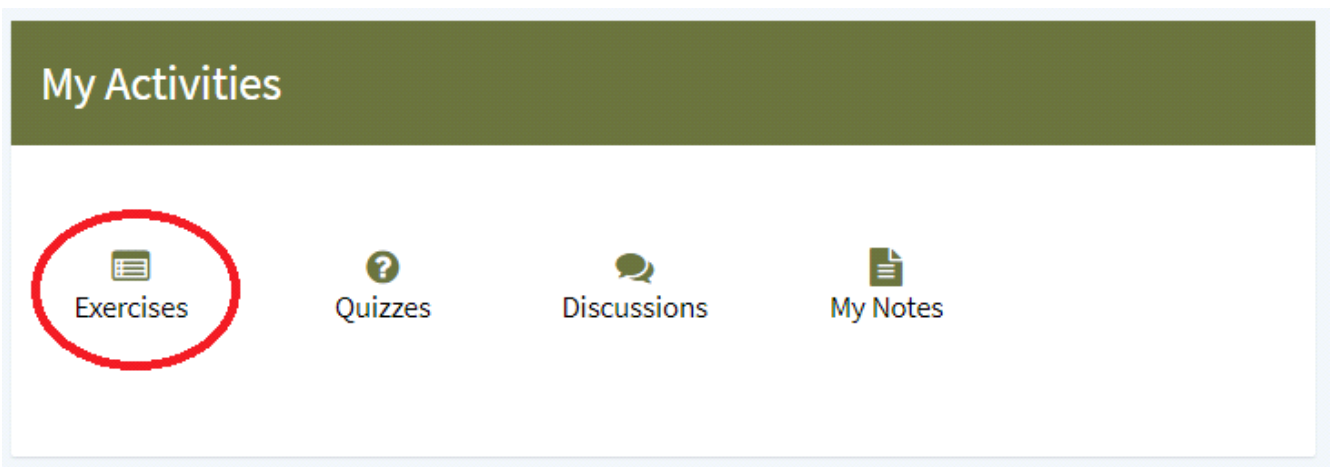

1. What are Remote Teams? Mention TWO advantages of building a remote team for Farhan's agency. (2 Marks)
2. What does it mean to be an Entrepreneur as a Lifelong Learner? Give ONE practical step Farhan can take to start learning again and explain why it matters for his business. (1 Mark)
